REPORT OF THE SCHOOL BOARD.

FOR THE YEAR ENDING MARCH 1, 1893.

To the district and town of Chesterfield:

We are enabled to report a successful year, for all our schools. In no school has there been any serious jar, and we are fully convinced that, as a whole, there has not been a year of so great and general prosperity, throughout the whole district, since the adoption of our present school organization.

For this success, our teachers are entitled to a large share of the credit, for they have achieved what of success has been secured, in too many instances, notwithstanding the discouragements of tardiness, irregular attendance, and parental indifference, and for all our teachers we have only words of commendation.

The results of the past year have more fully confirmed us in the belief that thoroughly well educated teachers, of sound health, who have had either practical or normal experience, are the cheapest.

With good teachers what is most needed to advance our schools is an increased interest amongst the parents, a persistent determination that their children shall attend school, so long as teachers are employed who are competent to instruct them; that they manifest an interest in the progress of their children, and see to it that they are at the schools early and daily and stay till the last bell.

Children cannot be expected to possess an interest in learning exceeding that of adults, who know the need of knowledge and the advantages it gives its possessor in the battle of life.

Few realize the loss sustained by irregular attendance in our schools. In Cheshire county, according to the reports of 1892, there were 5,452 pupils enrolled in the different schools with an average daily attendance of 4,242, showing a loss of 1,210 school years to the children of the county, enough to fit one hundred fairly brainy scholars for college. Of this loss Chesterfield sustained a little more than one-twenty-fifth part, or enough to more than fit four for college.

It thus appears that in this county twenty-two per cent., or a fraction more than one-fifth of our school privileges, are wasted, a small portion of it on account of sickness, but by far the larger amount because of parental indifference. Not only does this irregular attendance result in personal loss to those who do not attend, but it breaks up classes, perplexes the teachers and impedes the progress of those who are constant in attendance. Parents, will you not see that tardiness and absenteeism are stopped? It depends on you, and you can prevent ninety per cent. of it. The number of children, between the ages of five and fifteen years, as returned by the selectmen in April, 1892, was 145; boys 72; girls 73.
